Statement from Ben Baxter, headteacher of The Cooper School

First published Friday 16 June 2006 in News

THE article in the Bicester Advertiser (June 9, 2006) makes serious allegations of bullying undertaken by a specific group of students at The Cooper School. The article would seem to suggest that the specific incidents which form the basis of the article have happened recently and/or continue to happen.

The actual incidents alluded to actually happened two years ago and, both at the time and subsequently, the school has taken positive and pro-active steps to address the issues raised.

Every single incident reported was (and is) thoroughly investigated and dealt with swiftly with appropriate actions and sanctions imposed as are available to any state secondary school in the country in this case this included two students being permanently excluded as the ultimate sanction that a school

As a school we have many methods in place to help students who are affected by bullying, as is demonstrated our clear anti-bullying policy which states that: '... bullying is completely contrary to the aims and values of the school which encourages a respect for others and tolerance of individual differences'.

The headteacher will not condone or tolerate bullying at The Cooper School. The priority of the school is to maximise each and every individual student's potential and that can only be achieved in a calm, safe and secure environment.
